CULTURE

Tongan culture has been influenced by the number of Tongan citizens living overseas but some traditional ceremonies and art forms are still practiced. These include kava ceremonies, the manufacturing of tapa cloth from bark, and traditional dancing.

LANGUAGES

Tongan and English

Tongan and English are the official languages. Tongan is a Polynesian language that is closely related to Wallisian, Niuean and Hawaiian.

DRESS

Tongan men and women wear a type of clothing called a tupenu, which is similar to a sarong. For women, this consists of a long tupenu, while men wear a shorter tupenu. Women cover the tupenu with a kofu, or western-style dress. Men top the tupenu either with a t-shirt, a casual shirt, or on formal occasions, a dress shirt.

RELIGION

Christianity

Christianity is the predominant religion, and most Tongans are ardent churchgoers. Sunday is celebrated as a sabbath, and even enshrined as such in the constitution. This means no trade is conducted on this day, except for essential services.

WORKPLACE CULTURE

Tongans tend to be very polite and may say what they think you want to hear. They can have a relaxed approach to time and are often quite hierarchical. Take the time for relaxed conversation before a meeting, as they will appreciate you taking an interest in their culture and wellbeing.

Swearing and blasphemy are not common and can be interpreted as offensive or aggressive behaviour.

PASTIMES

Rugby and singing

Rugby union is the national sport in Tonga and Tongan players are well represented in international competition. Singing is popular in Tonga, with choral singing common in churches and kava clubs.
